

The conciliation meeting

This is the first police ethics complaint resolution mode. It provides an opportunity for open and respectful discussions between the people involved in the complaint.

This meeting allows you to talk about the events together in the presence of a neutral person.

OBJECTIVES

With the assistance of a conciliator from our organization, this meeting aims at achieving the following objectives:

- Allowing you to express yourself freely and to hear the other side's point of view;
- Reviewing the facts and perceptions of each of the parties;
- Restoring the trust relationship between the parties;
- Occasionally improving future interventions.

BEFORE:

Prior to the conciliation meeting, you will have the opportunity to discuss with your conciliator, who can answer all your questions and deal with your concerns.

DURING:

During the conciliation meeting, participants may be accompanied by a person of their choice. Police officers or peace officers are not in uniform. The conciliator is present at all times to ensure that the climate remains favourable for discussion. The discussions held during conciliation are confidential.

AFTER:

If the participants agree, they sign a conciliation settlement that terminates the complaint process. Otherwise, the Commissioner must decide what action must be taken regarding the complaint: he may decide to close the file or decide to order an ethics investigation.

The ethics investigation

The Commissioner may decide to conduct an investigation in cases of public interest: deaths or serious injuries, criminal offences allegedly committed by police officers or other serious events.

The investigation is intended to shed light on this situation. The investigator therefore meets with the witnesses and gathers all the relevant evidence (documents, videos, etc.).

AFTER

After the investigation, the Commissioner takes one of the two following decisions:

- If the evidence is insufficient, he will dismiss your complaint. In this case, you will receive a written decision explaining why the complaint was dismissed. You have the right to request a review of this decision.
- If the evidence is sufficient, he will cite one or more police officers to appear before the Police Ethics Committee. The Commissioner will then present the evidence gathered during a hearing where witnesses will be heard. The subjects of the complaint have the right to present their version of the facts and to assert all means of defence that are available to them.
